The voice

Atlanta-based vocalist Antoinique guides listeners on a spiritual journey, fusing gospel, jazz, R&B, soul, and neo-soul. Born outside Cleveland, Ohio, in Ashtabula, the soulful songbird honed her pipes as a preacher's kid in her father's church and found her love of writing in high school. Her lyrical mastery led to writing for Teddy Riley and Monifah, the television series "Soul Food," the independent film "Nothing 2 Lose," and the traveling play "Real Men Talking."

Her 2003 debut, "Introducing Antoinique," reached number one in several overseas markets. After stepping back to raise her family, she returned with "Church In The Park" (2019), recorded with Ricky Harris of Cue Sound in Philadelphia and released on PMC Music: inspirational lyrics over a fusion of jazz, gospel, R&B, soul, and neo-soul, powered by icons Ella Fitzgerald and Mahalia Jackson and one conviction: it is always Church In The Park.

Church In The Park (2019)

13 tracks, 47 minutes. Focus singles: "Never Die" (the catalog's most-streamed song), "I'm Enough" (with the Live from the Couch Series video), and "Testify." Mastering by Colin Leonard (SING Mastering); mixed by Kori Anders; recorded at Patchwerk Studios, Atlanta, and Cue Sound, Philadelphia.
